

Southwood Practice – Why do GP's sometimes charge Fees?

Most of the services offered by the surgery are free under the NHS. Some services are not covered under the NHS and for these your GP, like other professionals, can charge a fee.

The fee will reflect both the doctor's time to carry out the service and the doctor's professional opinion. It may also include the cost of nursing or secretarial support, stationary and consumables.

WHY DO GPs SOMETIMES CHARGE FEES? YOUR QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Isn't the NHS supposed to be free?

The National Health Service provides most health care to most people free of charge, but there are exceptions: prescription charges have existed since 1951, and there are a number of other services for which fees are charged. Sometimes the charge is made to cover some of the cost of treatment, for example, dental fees; in other cases, it is because the service is not covered by the NHS, for example, medical reports for insurance companies.

Surely the doctor is being paid anyway?

It is important to understand that GPs are not employed by the NHS, they are self-employed, and they have to cover their costs - staff, buildings, heating, lighting, etc - in the same way as any small business. The NHS covers these costs for NHS work, but for non-NHS work the fee has to cover the doctor's costs.

What is covered by the NHS and what is not?

The Government's contract with GPs covers medical services to NHS patients. In recent years, more and more organisations have been involving doctors in a whole range of non-medical work. Sometimes the only reason that GPs are asked is because they are in a position of trust in the community, or because an insurance company or employer wants to be sure that information provided is true and accurate.

Examples of non-NHS services for which GPs can charge their NHS patients are:

- accident/sickness insurance certificates
- certain travel vaccinations
- private medical insurance reports

Examples of non-NHS services for which GPs can charge other institutions are:

- medical reports for an insurance company
- some reports for the DSS/Benefits Agency
- examinations of local authority employees

Why does it sometimes take my GP a long time to complete my form?

Time spent completing forms and preparing reports takes the GP away from the medical care of his or her patients. Most GPs have a very heavy workload - the majority work up to 70-80 hours a week - and paperwork takes up an increasing amount of their time, so many GPs find they have to take some paperwork home at night and weekends.

I only need the doctor's signature - what is the problem?

When a doctor signs a certificate or completes a report, it is a condition of remaining on the Medical Register that they only sign what they know to be true. In order to complete even the simplest of forms, therefore, the doctor might have to check the patient's entire medical record. Carelessness or an inaccurate report can have serious consequences for the doctor with the General Medical Council or even the Police.

What will I be charged?

It is recommended that a GPs tell patients in advance if they will be charged, and how much. It is up to the individual doctor to decide how much to charge. Surgeries often have lists of fees on the waiting room wall based on these suggested fees.
